Red tide reports erroneous

By RICH ADAMS

Shrimpers returning from first-of-the-season runs out of Bayou Cadet Tuesday confirmed earlier fears that this shrimping season may be the worst in years, primarily due to Spring flooding.

The largest haul brought into Bayou Cadet Marina Tuesday was one barrel or 250 pounds, according to Joe Hill, marina operator and owner of the 'Miss Jay.'

In addition to the small amount of shrimp available in Coastal waters, the Gulf of Mexico is crowded with shrimp boats from Louisiana and Florida, the owners of the out-of-state boats attempting to recover from equally-disastrous seasons in those states.

Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources, Director Dr. Richard L. Leard echoed the reports of poor catches Wednesday, saying the size of shrimp is good but the quantity of shrimp available is poor.

Joe Cure, owner of Bayou Cadet Fisheries, said Tuesday the size of shrimp being taken is average but the number of shrimp being taken is "way below average."

"I cannot predict if the season will be any better later this year. The catches are fewer in number than last year," Cure said Tuesday.

Rod Bookout of Hattiesburg, a sports fisherman who spent Monday and part of Tuesday shrimping with a 16-foot trawl, recorded a catch of 90 pounds.

"My wife, son, and myself spent all Monday night and part of today shrimping. We actually wound up getting more shrimp than last year," Bookout said Tuesday as he loaded ice-filled coolers on his boat.

"The only difference is that the shrimp are harder to get to this year. We got a number of good sized shrimp by the bridge this year," he added.

Gordon Herron of Westward, La. said he came to Bayou Cadet because "I was getting nowhere in Louisiana waters."

"My brother-in-law just invested $20,000 in this boat," Herron said as he sorted through catfish and croaker he had caught in his net while trawling.

"We got about 100 pounds of shrimp. That is way below average," he continued.

"We are pulling in more trash than anything. We are trying to save the

Port committee snagged on fuel corporation site

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Industrial Committee has not yet decided which Port Bienville Industrial Park lot will be suitable for a proposed multi-million dollar diesel storage facility.

Committee member Harry Baxter of Lakeshore said Wednesday, "We need to have a few more meetings before we can make a decision."

Last week the commission discussed selling land and renting public dock space to the Baron Corp. of Biloxi at the end of a Port Bienville canal turning basin.

Russell Fayard, corporation president, said at a commission meeting last week, "We plan a total capacity of 200,000 barrels, but we plan to turnover 500,000 barrels each month."

However, the Baron Corp. needed permission from Marine Concrete Structures, a neighboring tenant, to moor barges along its shoreline.

Port Commission Director W. Wilson Webre reported at the committee meeting Tuesday afternoon, "Marine Concrete says we should not do anything to impair their right to the waterway."

Committee member Harry Baxter asked, "Would this conflict with Kim Moore's pipe coating operation?"

Committee Chairman David McDonald replied, "Any future tenant who is sizable will always have a barge there."

"If you want sizeable tenants and increased barge traffic then there's no question there will be congestion in the turning basin," McDonald stated.

"It's not a true turning basin with a dock," McDonald added.

Austin White of Biloxi, independent consultant to the Baron Corp., reported, "In discussing this with Russell Fayard, corporate president, the ideal thing they want is some method of scheduling vessels at the dock facility and some means of placing piping by the dock."

The Biloxi consultant also suggested

County schools adopt $2.8 million budget

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County School Board Wednesday morning adopted a $2.8 million budget for fiscal year 1981-1982, almost a 20 percent increase over last year's unamended budget.

However, the 1980-1981 amended budget is $244,000 more than the budget which was approved at the Wednesday recess meeting.

Last year's original budget was $2,356,423, later amended upwards to a total of $3,055,000 for the year.

Board President Woodrow Ladner and Board Members Monvel Cuevas and Oris Ladner comprised the quorum at the meeting. Board Member Johnny Banks was recovering from burns he received to his eyes while working at Ingall's Shipbuilding, and Board Member Louie Ladner was out of state, according to Woodrow Ladner.

Superintendent Billy D. Sills was called to New Orleans due to illness in his family, the president added.

Cuevas pointed out that only $1,000 is earmarked for the student activity fund at the three elementary schools in the district while $10,000 is allotted to Hancock North Central High School.

Head Bookkeeper Brenda Ladner said she based the figures on last year's budget, adding she did not know how the funds are broken down.

Woodrow Ladner told the board he

Horizon glow explained

Heavy rains halt Cat Island fire

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Heavy rains earlier this week may have extinguished a marsh and woods fire which raged during the weekend over several hundred acres of Cat Island off Pass Christian.

Island owner, Nathan Boddie of Gulfport said Tuesday morning 400-500 acres of the 2,685-acre island were burned in the blaze.

"The good rain we had Sunday helped control the fire, and the rain Monday may have put the fire out—we just don't know for sure yet," Boddie reported.

Boddie said he has not yet determined the origin of the island fire and stated, "We don't know whether the fire was set or what happened."

Hundreds of spectators parked along US-90 in Pass Christian and Long Beach

Saturday and Sunday night to watch the fire's glow on the horizon.

Crewmen of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Point Estero in Gulfport said Saturday night they had received hundreds of calls from Coast residents reporting the orange glow.

Boddie, his wife, son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Mike Senior of New Orleans, and friend Homer Bell, also of Gulfport, fought the blaze with back-fires Sunday and early Monday.

"We couldn't do anything Saturday because of high winds and the position of the fire," Boddie explained.

The fire started on the south side of the west end of the island and with the southwest wind the fire burned the west end of the island and moved east," the

SBA ok's Hancock tornado assistance

By RICH ADAMS

Individuals, families and businesses in Hancock and Harrison counties who sustained damages in the tornado of May 10 through 16 are eligible for disaster relief through Small Business Administration (SBA) disaster grants.

For disaster assistance three times already this year.

Hancock residents are urged to file their applications as soon as possible. Potential forms will be available to complete and submit their disaster application from May 1 through May 31, 1980.

A whole disaster relief program in Hancock County is being set up by SBA.

documents will be necessary in completing SBA application.

Bordin said the current eligibility will allow Hancock and Harrison counties to secure SBA disaster assistance for property damage, rebuilding, and other losses.

For further information, call 457-6524.

Bordin suggested it may be a good idea for persons seeking SBA help to first call the Hancock County office to determine what information or

SALVAGING ITEMS—Bay St. Louis Auxiliary Policeman Edwin Williams receives a box of personal items from one of 15 firemen from five stations responding to a structure fire off Tigris Avenue in Shoreline Park Monday. Units from the East Hancock, Clermont Harbor, Diamondhead, Waveland, and Bay St. Louis Fire Departments battled the fire after initial problems locating the home. The raised home near a bayou sustained extensive fire, smoke, and water damage, firemen said. (Staff photo—Rich Adams)

GRIMACE—Wille Loflon, 64, a resident of 3743 Meadowlark Lane, Gulfport, and an employee of Bond Paving Company, grimaces in pain as Mobile Medics employees lift him to a stretcher for transport to Garden Park Hospital. Loflon was talking to another employee in the Bay St. Louis Shopping Center parking lot when a nearby truck ran over Loflon's foot, according to Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams. Bond Paving company is presently re-paving the parking lot at the Shopping Center. Mobile Medics employees placed an inflatable cast over Loflon's injured foot prior to taking him to the hospital. He is listed in stable condition with a broken foot, according to Bay Policeman Alvin Favre. (Staff photo—Rich Adams)

Hancock Chamber board opposes Coastal Program

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Board of Directors this week joined the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce and the Mississippi Department of Economic Development in opposition to the State Bureau of Marine Resources' proposed Coastal Program.

The Hancock Chamber action Tuesday night followed a presentation on the program by Victor Franciewicz of Bay St. Louis, special assistant to the bureau director, at a chamber board meeting.

In its opposition to the program, the Economic Development Department has stated the proposals are unnecessary since the wetlands are already protected by state law.

But Franciewicz emphasized the bureau's Coastal Program, being developed under the federal Coastal Zone Management Act, will fill a need for management of the state's wetlands.

Protection of those areas is already provided by existing state laws and agencies, the speaker conceded. "But that protection makes no provision for use of those lands. We are proposing an intelligent approach to the management, protection and use of the wetlands rather than rigid restrictions," Franciewicz maintains.

He said the Coastal Program will provide for one-stop permitting, eliminating the need for permits from several state agencies for waterfront development.

But Chamber Board Member Frank Lee of Leetown Community said he does not believe other state agencies will relinquish their regulatory powers to BMR as called for in the program proposals.

"The bureau will be totally ineffective because those other agencies are not going to give up their powers," Lee said.

In response to allegations from Hancock County Schools 16th Section land manager Terrell Randolph that the program will remove some 16th

Section holdings from school board jurisdiction, Franciewicz admitted the bureau has chosen to ignore Spanish Land Grants in setting boundaries and is attempting to draw boundaries based on Common Law.

There are people who have been paying taxes on those lands for many years," said Paul Vegas, Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning commissioner and Diamondhead executive.

Vegas noted Louisiana has granted the same rights to trappers who have earned their living from wetlands as the state grants to farmers who work uplands for their livelihood.

Chamber Vice President Richard Thomas expressed strong opposition to BMR as called for in the program. "This will just be another overstaffed, unnecessary regulatory agency putting more strain on the already overburdened state and federal budgets - one more bureaucracy to contend with."

Also Tuesday, chamber special events chairman Jeanette Purchner reported Gulf Fishermen, Inc. Will stage a "Blessing of the Fleet" with financial assistance from the chamber at Bayou Cadet July 5.

Chamber Treasurer Mary Perkins requested an executive session to discuss a lost check.

Executive Secretary Jerry Benigno requested executive sessions to discuss surprise plans for Hospitality Day events Friday, and to discuss a recent trip to a chamber executives institute.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Edmond Fahey III

Some people appear to get better breaks in life. Others appear to get more than their share of bad breaks. Good or bad, the breaks are a part of life. When depressing moods occur through sickness, financial difficulty, or other adversity, there is only one person who can help or hurt you. Only one person can break your nerve or crumble your hopes. Only one person can cripple your faith. That one person is YOU, YOURSELF.

Life is never a continuous peaceful path through a pleasant landscape. Life requires challenge, effort, exertion, determination, courage and sacrifice. Men like Mozart, Robert Louis Stevenson, Goethe, Nietzsche, Beethoven, Dickens, Michelangelo, Mark Twain and countless others of less fame overcame bad breaks. They proved the saying true—"Stick and stay and make it pay." You can too if you dare to decide to do it...

FRIENDLY AND OBEDIENT—The Bay-Waveland Humane Society describes as friendly and obedient this male mixed miniature collie which is available for adoption free to a good home through the society. For information, call 467-4263. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

There are smoke signals all up and down the coast these sultry summer days, as we happily revert to the old practice of cooking that goes back to the days of the caveman - outdoors over a fire.

From the smallest improvised charcoal grill to the fanciest of set-ups, it's every cook for himself - or herself, with each cook's own secret ways and means of barbecuing.

There are many arguments as to the origin of the word "barbecue." Some claim that it comes from the French "Barbe a queue" which meant originally a pig or lamb cooked "from whiskers to tail."

Others say the word derived from the Spanish "barbacoa" - a frame made of sticks, on which meat was set for roasting over a deep pit which held the fire, and that on Southwest lands American cowboys learned the method from their Mexican comrades.

Still others maintain that the barbecue came to our country by way of Latin America - the "churrasco."

Wherever it started, it's a tradition in America's South and Southwest, a heritage also from those early cowboys.

Our favorite foods for barbecue are ribs, pork chops or chickens, all well basted with a tangy sauce, but with ever-spiraling food costs, most of us are settling for hot dogs or hamburgers and such - and very tasty they are as well.

In fact, when you're hungrily sniffing the aroma of burgers on the grill, you can scarcely wait for the treat in store!

So, in salute to the budget, let's serve:

HOBO'S HAMBURGERS

1 lb ground beef
 4 good sized potatoes, sliced
 2 large onions, sliced
 6 slices sharp cheese
 Hot pepper sauce

Season ground beef to your taste with salt, pepper, pepper sauce, parsley, whatever appeals to you. Make into six patties, and place on your "hobo" sacks - a foil square for each 'burger - be sure to make the bottom double-thick, so the meat doesn't stick to the foil.

Top each burger with generous layers of the sliced potatoes, and onions, dotting with butter or margarine and topping each with a slice of cheese.

Fold over the foil to make your "hobo" sack and cook over a good hot charcoal grill for 15 minutes or so.

P.S. You may like to pour barbecue sauce over the whole business before closing the sacks.

Bicycling is something which is ever increasing in our community, and the big concern of most riders is, of course, autos and dogs.

A friend of ours was telling us about a rather unique accident she was involved in while on her bike. She was pedaling along and a cat passed in front of her only to be followed by a large dog in hot pursuit.

Undoubtedly the dog did not pay attention to anything but the cat and went flying into her bike.

A witness to the incident which happened over a week ago said she still has a badly bruised ankle.

So it goes to show you that you have to look out for cats and dogs too when on a bicycle.

The action was brisk on the beach near Bayou Caddy Sunday morning during a jubilee.

We understand quite a few flounders and hampers of shrimp were caught.

We have always heard about such things, but have never witnessed such an event. We would like to take pictures of the action if we could catch one going on. Of course, we would have to get our share of fish and shrimp first.

Talking about fishing, we have two big rodeos in the area, one next weekend and the other the following.

Diamondhead's annual affair gets underway Friday of this week and we wish all the anglers luck.

We will be trying to catch something ourselves, weather permitting.

The big Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo will be in full swing July 3-6. As many of you know, Hancock's J.D. (Big John) Rutherford is King Neptune and his son Dr. J.D. Rutherford, III is fleet surgeon.

So all we can suggest is for everyone to register and wet a line.

We realize it is now vacation time for many of the students in our school systems. But, oh how fast summer passes us by!

The members of Bay Junior High Cheerleaders will conduct a garage and bake sale Saturday at the Target Service Station on US-90, Waveland.

The members of the cheerleader squad will be trying to raise funds to help them along with activities during the coming school year. We suggest you pay them a visit and see if they may have something of value for you at a special price.

They need the support of the community so they can continue being an award-winning group.

It has been brought to our attention that numbers of people still congregate in the street near the Commagere Park and McDonald Field.

Last week Police Chief Douglas Williams issued a warning that tickets will be issued for violators and it looks like his department will have to do so in order for people to understand.

It is a dangerous situation, and someone could get hurt and we are glad to hear Mayor Larry Bennett say Tuesday morning that he was backing up the police department in enforcing the law.

There are also a few people who ignore the 10 mile-per-hour speed limit and it seems they also need to be ticketed for speeding in the playground areas.

"UNLOCK THE LANDS"

Washington Report

By REP. TRENT LOTT
5th District, Mississippi

The Federal Government has become an energy resource monopolist.

In the name of the American people, the government owns the mineral rights to between 85 and 90 percent of this nation's remaining estimated oil resources, 40 percent of our remaining natural gas resources, 85 percent of high grade tar sands, 76 percent of domestic oil shale, and significant portions of our remaining uranium and geothermal resource base.

Since there are indications that by the late 1980s, this nation is expected to be importing just over 60 percent of our domestic oil needs, we would think the Federal Government would be doing everything in its power to increase domestic oil and gas and coal production.

Instead, Government policies have actually depressed domestic oil and gas production and increased the price of oil to the American citizens.

If there is anything obvious in this country's energy crisis, it is that increased domestic production of oil and strong and effective conservation measures are vitally needed.

With that need in mind, last week I joined in sponsoring the "Unlocking America's Energy Resources Act," a joint resolution which would remove the restrictions impeding the leasing of energy resources on public lands, the outer continental shelf, and other lands containing resources under Federal Government control. By removing administrative restrictions not specifically required by law, we could make available to the American people billions of barrels of oil and trillions of cubic feet of natural gas, thereby allowing us to cut back on our imports.

As a member of the House Select Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf, I have learned that the U.S. Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) alone is estimated to contain up to 60 percent of our nation's untapped oil resources, which may be as high as 157 billion barrels of oil.

But today, only 2.5 percent of the U.S. OCS is under lease compared to 40 percent of the rest of the world's OCS, while over 20 percent of the total world oil comes from the OCS.

I am convinced that domestic energy production can be increased to enormous levels, without hindering our future generations, and in an environmentally safe and orderly manner. Offshore leasing activities have maintained a positive marine, human and coastal environmental safety record.

If our national policies were reversed and accelerated exploration began, I believe pressure would be put on the OPEC nations to soften their policies. And, once new reserves of oil were identified, it would put this nation in an advantageous bargaining position because of the dependence OPEC nations have for income from oil sales. But first, we must unlock the lands!

TRAFFIC JAM-The need for better launching facilities in Hancock County was in evidence Monday with the opening of the Mississippi shrimping season. Many prospective shrimpers had to wait a turn to launch. It is ever more important for Hancock to have more launching facilities. We understand the shrimpers were more plentiful near Bay St. Louis than Bayou Cadet on opening day, yet there is not a public launch to be used. It costs money to run from Jourdan River or Bayou Cadet to Bay St. Louis. We hope someone will try and help by having a launching facility in Bay St. Louis and also push for improvements at Bayou Cadet. We understand the Hancock County Board of Supervisors is trying to get something going with the Corps of Engineers at Bayou Cadet, we hope they will come up with something soon. There are a lot of folks who shrimp and fish, some for profit and others for sport.

Tips Listed to Help With Easier Shaving

Men. Do you know how to shave?

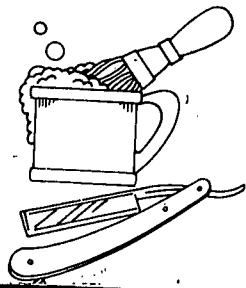

Silly question, right? Of course men know how to shave. It's easy, isn't it?

Yes, it's easy. But it's also quite possible that you have been plagued with minor skin problems for years because you haven't been taught how best to shave for you.

Whether you use a double-edge blade, the conventional single-edge type, an injector blade, or the twin blade cartridge shaving system, certain rules for shaving apply, the American Medical Association points out.

The main idea of a wet shave is to soften the whiskers. Hair absorbs water, becoming soft and easier to cut. To cope with the water-resistant film of natural oil that collects on hairs, the experts suggest:

1. Wash the face with soap and hot water thoroughly.
2. Rinse with hot water and apply your shaving preparation. If possible, wait two full minutes to allow the whiskers to soak.

3. Wet the razor before starting to shave. Keep wetting it during the process.

4. Shave the chin and upper lip last. They have the heaviest beard and need the longest soaking.

Shaving creams are actually soaps, which flush away the oils and prepare the whiskers for the blade. Men with oily skins usually prefer a lather-type cream, while those with dry or soap-sensitive skin often do better with brushless cream. Some men prefer a lubricating gel.

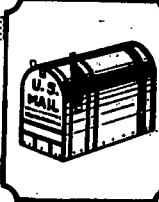

Men bothered by ingrown hairs can experiment to find which shaving method gives the least trouble. It is best not to shave more than necessary, and not too close. A sharp blade is important. Men with acne also will need to experiment with the least troublesome shaving method. Changing to an electric razor may help. A few men with severe acne must grow beards because nothing has been found to help them.

Shaving should be with the grain and as seldom as possible. It is important that the beard be softened. After shaving, the face may be rinsed with hot water, then cold water, and an astringent, antiseptic lotion may be applied.

Residents call attention to crying need for animal shelter

June 24, 1980

Dear Sir,

We are all happy to know that Mississippi is finally getting the recognition it has deserved for a long time: new industries moving in, supermarkets and space being readied for new shopping centers.

Also we are nationally recognized for the Test Site and Miss U.S.A. seems delighted with the Coast and is willing to be with us for a third time.

Bay Saint Louis is sharing in this publicity and expansion as well, and we take pride in a library that would be a credit to a much larger town.

These are the good things, but there is one thing in particular that does not deserve pride and is a disgrace to a town of this size and ambitions.

Has it ever occurred to the administration that the pride shown in other things is sorely missing in its care for the abandoned and starving animals that roam our streets turning over garbage cans and scattering the contents all over our otherwise nice scenery?

Many of these animals were once loving pets and were abandoned for one reason or another so they wander confused, shabby and hungry looking for their owners until they wind up along our roads and highways pathetic carcasses for the crows to pick.

These poor creatures need a clean, decent place to stay until someone takes them or until they are put out of their misery in a dignified manner.

I have just been informed that the city is closing the deplorable shelter here in Bay Saint Louis, which gives us the chance to ask for a tri-shelter which includes Bay Saint Louis, Waveland and the County.

We hope to point with pride to such a facility in the near future, and it can be done.

Democratic Platform Committee 'an exercise in futility'

June 19, 1980

Letters to the Editor
The Sea Coast
P.O. Box 230
Bay St. Louis, Ms. 39520

Dear Sir:

It is dubious if the Democratic National Committee Platform group, meeting June 23rd to 27th, can come up with a very viable platform.

In short, it should be an exercise in futility, with the Carter forces countering Kennedy, trying to out-Reagan

Reagan, and promising anything and everything to interest groups of whatever hue, and of course, hope for the "happy days are here" for the rank and file, and panaceas galore.

To make this meeting truthful and more brief, my suggestion for the one and only plank: he kept us out of the Olympics.

FAST ACTION—Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana rushes a fire hose to a 201 Ulman Ave. home while Fire Department CETA worker Nathaniel Jones, center, and Police Chief Douglas Williams assist. WHITE TIDE—Dead catfish and croakers discarded by shrimpers float in the docking area of Bayou Cadet Tuesday as boats began returning from 1.5 days of shrimping. Local shrimpers are referring to this year's season as "the worst ever," primarily due to Spring floods which forced young shrimp from nursery areas into deeper water. (Staff photo—Rich Adams)

Island owner reported.
"It would have taken 30-40 men to effectively fight the fire because it was burning in four or five different places," Boddie stated.
"The area burned is the same area which burned four years ago. The fire killed smaller trees, but we've also lost some of the larger trees too," Boddie said.
When asked if the blaze would make the island's west end more susceptible to storm erosion, Boddie replied, "Grass and palmettos in that area help hold the island together and they will grow back soon."
"The main part of the island burned, but it's protected by beaches," he added.
Boddie said he had a "serious problem" with people setting fires about four years ago and added, "We've had more fires in the last four years than in the last 40 years."
"We're not sure what this fire was, it could have been a careless flounderer or camper," Boddie stated.

Bob Sabo, Harrison County area forester, said Monday he had no information about the Cat Island fire and explained, "We don't have the facilities to fight a fire on any of the islands and we have no means of making a reconnaissance flight either."
"The only plane we have is in the northern part of the state," Sabo reported.
The area forester was not sure who had jurisdiction over island fires and referred questions to Wade Guice, Harrison County Civil Defense director.
Guice said Monday, "I didn't even know there was a fire on Cat Island."
Mrs. Boddie said Monday, "When we had the fires four years ago, the Marines helped us put them out."
The Coast Guard reported they could not effectively fight the fire from the Point Estero because of shallows surrounding the western end of the island.

County employment continues to improve

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Hancock County's unemployment rate declined to 5.6 percent in May, current Mississippi State Employment Service reports indicate.

The county's unemployment rate has steadily declined this year although statewide figures increased to 6.9 percent in May.

In numbers, the county had 390 residents out of work in May compared to 400 unemployed in April.

Some 6,790 people were county residents were employed in May which increased from 6,680 in April.

Based on place of work, state figures show nonagricultural wage and salaried employees numbering 7,700 in May.

Of these employees, 1,120 were involved in manufacturing and 6,580 were nonmanufacturing jobs.

Edgar C. Lloyd Jr., Mississippi Employment Security Commission executive director, said the state's unemployment rate increased .5 percent from April's 6.4 jobless rate.

"Last year's unemployment rate for May stood at 5.1 percent," Lloyd added.

"The 6.9 percent for the state was lower than the national rate of 7.0 for May. MESC figures showed 70,700 unemployed and 960,100 employed out of a civilian labor force of 1,030,800," the executive director said.

The initial unemployment insurance claims totaled 29,707 for May. Continued claims totaled nearly 133,000 for the same period compared to only 80,000 a year ago," Lloyd stated.

Mississippi's unemployment insurance trust fund, from which jobless benefits are paid, is in "good financial condition" despite continued high unemployment, according to an official of the Mississippi Employment Security.

Lloyd says the trust fund contained just over $242.8 million at the end of May.

"The state has been paying out an average of approximately $6.87 million per month since January. Almost 133,000 persons drew unemployment benefits from the trust fund last month," a spokesman said.

The maximum check is $90 per week, and jobless benefits can run for up to 26 weeks.

Lloyd says the trust fund should easily be able to withstand at least two years in a recession economy with a seven-eight percent unemployment rate. Lloyd says he does not foresee the possibility of the trust fund dropping dangerously low unless the economy slips into a severe depression. Lloyd points out that even during a recession employers are required to contribute a set percentage to the trust fund.

Current state law sets the maximum contribution for employers at four percent of the first $6,000 earned by each employee. The minimum contribution for 1980 is 1.4 percent.

"The rate automatically fluctuates, depending in part on the condition of the trust fund," the executive director explained.

"As a result of the 1974-75 recession, the trust fund dropped to its lowest level in recent years, standing at $82 million in March, 1976. The peak unemployment for that period was 9.9 percent in the summer of 1975," Lloyd said.

"During the '74-'75 recession, about 25 states withdrew money from the U.S. Treasury to help fund unemployment benefits. However, Mississippi was not in danger of needing to borrow from federal reserves even at the trust fund's lowest point. In fact, the MESC has never borrowed from the federal emergency reserve since the agency first began paying unemployment benefits on April 1, 1938," Lloyd reported.

The counties having the highest rate of unemployment for April were Jefferson with a rate of 18.5, Grenada with a rate of 11.6 and Alcorn with a rate of 11.5.

Smith, Franklin, and Rankin had the lowest rates of unemployed. Smith had a rate of 4.2, Franklin had a rate of 4.1 and Rankin had an unemployment rate of 3.1.

Fifty-one counties showed an increase in the unemployment rate for May while three remained the same. Twenty-eight counties had decreases in the unemployment rate for May.

believes the money is given to the principal of each school and distributed at the principals' discretion.

Brenda Ladner said the district spent in excess of $20,000 in student activity funds because the board continually reimbursed the funds to the schools.

"We cannot do that this year," the bookkeeper said.

"We should know how the money is distributed. If the principal disburses the money at his discretion, that is alright. If one sport eats all the money up at the beginning of the year, I say we should allot a percentage of the $10,000 to each sport," Woodrow Ladner stated.

Cuevas recommended the bookkeeping department supply the board with a monthly update of money spent and what is left in the student activities fund.

"This way we can have a clear picture of what money we have remaining," Woodrow Ladner stated. The board voted to table the student activity fund until the matter is discussed with Sills.

The board also tabled action on funding pay for study hall monitors. Cuevas recommended the system change from a six-period day to a five-period school day without study hall. Pay for study hall monitors is $9,188, according to the budget.

"Study hall is a waste of time. I see more destruction during study hall than any other time. The lay persons from the community who serve as monitors do not get the respect from students that a teacher would," the board president said.

"If we already have to pay the monitors, why not just do away with study hall and hire a few more teachers," Ladner added.

"This would be to the student's advantage," he stated.

The board agreed to discuss the matter with Sills before approving this part of the budget.

In the transportation section of the budget, Brenda Ladner said she computed the cost of gasoline and oil with a 10 percent increase to allow for rising costs.

The budget allows $75,000 for petroleum products.

Cuevas also pointed out that a grease trap in front of the senior high cafeteria may be affecting student appetites, noting that the trap often overflows.

Woodrow Ladner suggested the grease trap be moved to the side of the building facing the playground.

The board approved spending $19,928 for adult education this year.

Cuevas said 127 adult students received their GED diplomas this year, an equivalent of a high school diploma.

"If we can offer diplomas to 127 adults for $19,000, that is money well spent," the board president said.

On a motion by Oris Ladner, seconded by Cuevas, the board adopted the budget with the stipulation that the matters tabled would be discussed with Sills before final approval.

The board recessed until Friday at 9 a.m.

VA questions and answers

Q—I want to use my GI Bill entitlement to purchase a mobile home and a lot to put it on. But I understand I must get two separate loans at different interest rates. Is this true?

A—No. Effective April 3, 1980, the loans may be combined at one interest rate.

Q—May a veteran receive Veterans Administration educational assistance for training leading to a private pilot's license. A veteran must, however, possess a private pilot's license before entering a commercial flying program for which VA educational assistance is to be provided.

Q—Can closing costs be included in the amount of money the Veterans Administration guarantees for a GI home loan?

A—No. All closing costs must be paid by the veteran in cash from his or her own resources.

Q—I am presently on active duty and am participating in the Post Vietnam Veteran's Educational Assistance Program. I have a three-year enlistment commitment. How many months of entitlement will I have on completion of this commitment?

A—Under the Post Vietnam Veteran's Educational Assistance Program entitlement is limited to a maximum of 36 months, or the number of months you contributed, whichever is lesser.

Q—I am an honorably discharged veteran and I wish to be buried in a national cemetery. Can my wife also be buried in a national cemetery with me?

A—Yes. The spouse, widow, widower of an eligible active duty member or veteran who is buried in a national cemetery or agrees to burial at time of death is eligible.

The veteran must take a written request for a spouse's burial and sign a statement indicating that he or she elects burial in the same cemetery and intends to be interred in the same grave. Also, the widow or widower of a member of the armed forces of the United States lost or buried at sea or officially determined to be permanently absent in a status of missing or missing in action is eligible for national cemetery interment.

Q—In completing my annual income questionnaire for the Veterans Administration, should I show my home mortgage as a debt?

A—No. Since you do not show the value of your home as an asset, you cannot show your home mortgage as a debt.

Q—My brother was recently buried. He was a veteran. During the ceremonies the U.S. flag which draped the casket was presented to his wife. Why wasn't our mother entitled to this flag?

A—One burial flag is presented in accordance with the law to the next-of-kin of a veteran in the following order: widow, children, father, mother, brothers, sisters, etc.

Q—Will the Veterans Administration guarantee a loan for me to buy a condominium if I meet the credit and veteran eligibility requirements?

A—Yes. However, the condominium must also meet the minimum property standards as for a conventionally built single-family residence.

Q—Are veterans of the armed forces of Poland and Czechoslovakia entitled to hospitalization in Veterans Administration medical facilities?

A—Public Law 94-491 provided authority to furnish hospital care and medical services to certain specified veterans of the armed forces of Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Basically, they had to serve their home country during WWI or WWII, served in or with the British or French armed forces, and been citizens of the United States for at least ten years.

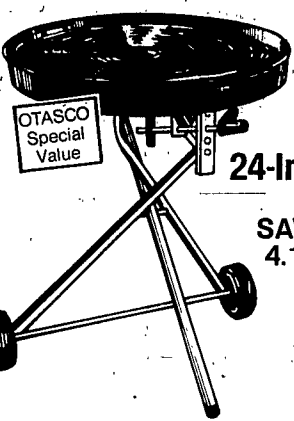

Q—I served on active duty four months in 1972 and received an honorable discharge. Am I entitled to loan guaranty benefits through the Veterans Administration?

A—Yes. Legislation passed in 1978 provided that 90 days or more service during the Vietnam Era—Aug. 5, 1964, to May 7, 1975—entitles veterans to VA loan guaranty benefits.

Q—My father was an honorably discharged wartime veteran. When he died a year ago, we were not aware of his eligibility for burial benefits. Can we still apply for these benefits?

A—A claim for burial benefits can be filed up to two years after a veteran's permanent burial or cremation. For an application and assistance check with the nearest VA regional office.

EMPTY TRAILER-A lack of parking space in the Bayou Cadet Marina forced many shrimpers to park their vehicles along the road leading to the marina Monday as the shrimp season opened. crabs we get in our nets. We may not make it selling shrimp this year," Herron added.

Hill said he had been out shrimping for two hours Tuesday on the 'Miss Jay' near Cat Island and returned with 'nothing.'

"This is the worst shrimping I have ever seen at Cat Island. Last year we would pull in five barrels a day. This year I got 2.5 baskets of shrimp," Hill said.

"The waters are real crowded with boats from Louisiana, Texas, and Florida. We had to go all the way down near the Biloxi Hilton Hotel before we were able to turn around. There were about 250 boats that I counted, mostly from Louisiana," he added.

Alvin Smith of Lakeshore, a crew member of the 'Miss Janet,' has not been shrimping this year because that boat is still under construction in the back section of the bayou.

"The shrimp I have seen are of a pretty good size, but they are not there in number," Smith said Tuesday.

Delbert Seay, also of Lakeshore, said he went out Tuesday for one hour in 'rough weather' and returned to Bayou Cadet 'with nothing.'

"Yesterday there were no shrimp. I saw some boats return with 120 or 125 pounds, but that is way below average," Seay said.

"This is the worst season I have ever seen by far," he added.

One shrimp boat captain on the dock near Seay said, "Next week you can come down to the docks and 'for-sale' signs will be on each boat."

Tom and Mary Dempsey of Bay St. Louis had been shrimping in their small sportscraft, 'Damn Yankee,' with Dempsey's brother, Joe Dempsey, and his wife Rita, of College Park, Maryland.

"We got a fair catch for five pulls. It will be enough for a few good meals," Tom Dempsey said.

"I heard one shrimper ran into a red tide today," he added.

Dr. Leard said his office in Long Beach received a report of red tide near Deer Island last week, but said Wednesday the planktonic organism coloring the water is not red tide.

"The planktonic organism is similar to red tide, but is not damaging," Leard explained.

"What concerns me is the white tide of dead croakers discarded by the shrimpers after emptying their nets," he added.

Leard said the season thus far is "overall bad," adding the situation would have been worse if Alabama had not opened its season the same day as Mississippi.

He said he went out to survey the situation on Gulf Coast waters Tuesday and noted a number of Louisiana boats trawling.

"All the Coastal states had the same floods. A lot of people just don't know where to go," Leard said.

"A lot of shrimpers are still trying to make big catches, but I suspect the season will remain bad until this fall, when white shrimp season opens," he continued.

"The size of shrimp being taken is optimum for factories," he added.

Also in connection with the season opening this week, some 19 persons were arrested by the Mississippi Marine Resources Enforcement Division Sunday and Monday, some charged with shrimping before the season opened.

"I could compare these charges to a situation where I am in a crowded mall with a box of $100 bills, and told a crowd of 4,000 onlookers they could start taking the bills at noon after I finished breakfast," Leard explained.

"If I left the box there and went to breakfast, I hardly could expect the people to wait until noon before they started taking the money from the box," he added.

Among the 19 arrested Sunday and Monday were the captains of three pogy boats charged with catching menhaden within one mile of shore in Hancock County.

They are Ernest Chandler Jr., Charles A. Wood, and Jackie Raffield, all of Pascagoula.

Leo P. Maurice of Bay St. Louis was arrested and charged with having no boat registration and shrimping within a half-mile of the shoreline, according to Jim Hanley, MMR supervisor of enforcement.

Also arrested on charges of shrimping without a license was Ronald Tanguis of Waveland, Hanley reported.

Leonard D. Lacoste of Kiln was arrested for allegedly shrimping in closed waters, Hanley added.

Other charges made Sunday and Monday include fleeing to avoid arrest, safety equipment and boat regulation violations, improper nets, and reckless operation of a boat.

A New Orleans man was arrested and charged with no life jackets, no throwover life preservers, and possession of a protected sea turtle, a federal offense, according to Hanley.

docking barges parallel to the dock which would use all but 50-75 feet of the public dock area.

"If they could get an easement from the port commission we could put the pipes underground," White added.

"If we get into another fuel shortage situation this will be an asset because you'll have fuel available," the consultant said.

"Two of the larger tanks will have floating dome roofs. By the year 2000, 50 percent of fuel products will be gasoline. Those two tanks could be converted to gasoline or gasoline storage," White explained.

"Fayard will pay rental for use of the dock and will be glad to handle dock scheduling for all those concerned," White stated.

Webre reported, "The committee never set dock fees because the turning basin has just come into realization. We were talking about $500 per month, but that was for 50-feet of dock area."

McDonald said, "He's talking about parallel berthing with fueling in a barge center manifold. This would eliminate the need for a catwalk as in the original plan."

Webre explained, "At the end of the dead end channel you wouldn't have any tidal fluctuation, which would be a problem."

The committee then discussed several alternate sites, but found environmental constraints hampering quick development of the lots.

White said, "They need to be in operation by Jan. 1, 1981 and the Baron Corp. has already contracted with companies."

"This will be a blending and storage facility which will work with two major oil companies. They will move product from New Orleans to Port Blenville, then to the Florida market."

McDonald said, "If we can't construct anything on the banks, then we don't have any choice but to work out some sort of scheduling at the dock."

"Then we have this pipe coating company. We'll also have to do some large thinking about any more barge tenants because we'll have this facility fully used with two tenants," the committee chairman stated.

NEW PORT PROSPECT—Russell Fayard, left, president of the Baron Corp. of Biloxi, proposes locating a 200,000-barrel diesel storage and blending facility at Port Blenville Industrial Park at a recent meeting of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission. Fayard's consultant Austin White of Biloxi listens to the presentation. The commission's industrial committee met Tuesday, but has not decided upon location for the industrial prospect. HERITAGE COMMITTEE
Dr. Edmund Keiser, chairman of The University of Mississippi biology department, has been named to the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Committee. The 10-member committee was created by the state legislature in 1974 to identify and acquire significant natural areas for conservation. Mississippi's Wildlife Heritage Program is being studied as a model for a National Heritage Trust to be established by Congress. Dr. Keiser has been a chairman of the Ole Miss biology department since 1976.

'SHENANDOAH'

The 14th annual Summer Showcase series will open June 26-28 at The University of Mississippi with the Tony Award winning musical "Shenandoah." Performances will begin at 8 p.m. in Fulton Chapel on campus. "Shenandoah" is the story of a widowed Virginia farmer, Charlie Anderson, who tries to keep his family out of the Civil War. Summer Showcase productions are presented jointly by the Departments of Music and Theatre Arts at Ole Miss. Other presentations will include "Oh Coward!" July 24-26. Ticket information for all three musicals is available through the Central Ticket Office in the Ole Miss Union, telephone 232-7411.

DESEGREGATION

A public television documentary traces the path of school desegregation in America by focusing on two locations: Farmville, Virginia, and Boston. "They Had a Dream: Brown v. Board of Education" can be seen at 9 p.m., Saturday, June 28, on the Mississippi ETV Network (channels 19, Biloxi; 12, Booneville; 17, Bude; 45, Columbia; 23, Greenwood; 29, Jackson; 14, Meridian; 2, Mississippi State; and 18, Oxford-University). The 60-minute program is an examination of what has been called the most important Supreme Court decision of the 20th century - the 1955 ruling that segregation is unconstitutional. Farmville, a small town in rural Prince Edward County, was the scene of a startling racial confrontation in the early days of the civil rights movement. Blacks sued the local School board, and their case became one of four argued jointly before the Supreme Court under the name of Brown v. Board of Education. When the Supreme Court ruled, tiny Farmville shunned violence but took a step that was ultimately more destructive: they closed the public schools. An all-white private academy was built. For four years, black students were without any school at all. Although the public schools were reopened by a Supreme Court order in 1964, they remain predominantly black. The all-white Prince Edward Academy is still in operation. In the mid-60's, desegregation efforts moved north. Boston became a battleground of violent confrontation over court-ordered busing. Years later, Boston still reels from the effects of those harrowing first years of busing.

Mobile Medic

only $28⁰⁰ per year

Throughout the nation, sincere efforts are being made to fill the great need for an effective system of emergency medical care. Many efforts are falling short.

Here in Mobile Medic's service area, we have found the answer to the problem. Our membership program is the backbone of our operation. Through its application, we are able to maintain excellence while keeping service within the financial reach of everyone.

Without the membership program, Mobile Medic would not operate. Even if you could afford to pay the $95.00 per call fee for emergency medical service that we would have to charge without the membership program, we might not be here...no one to come when you called. Your membership keeps us going and makes us one of the best in the state.

That's why we say, this month, you can save a life all year long, because through your support, emergency medical service does exist and continually improves for our entire area. Your membership protects you, your family and your neighbors.

Please fill out and return the attached postage-paid envelope with your check today...help us save lives all year long.

AS A MEMBER YOU RECEIVE:

- FREE emergency medical service within the county where you live
- Complete family coverage for you, your wife or husband, and all unmarried children under 21 living at home

Additional non-emergency member benefits:

- $25.00 for each doctor authorized non-emergency trip one way (transfers) within the boundaries of the members county
- For services beyond a members county, a $1.25 per mile service charge will be rendered. All transfers not authorized by a physician will be charged at non-member rates

AS A NON-MEMBER YOU PAY:

- $95.00 per emergency call
- $85.00 per non-emergency call
- An additional $1.75 per mile charge will be rendered for service beyond the county line and $10.00 for the use of oxygen.

News from the Church of St. Ann

A thought for the day from the library of Father Canisius Hayes, pastor St. Ann's Parish.

We can share our experiences together in ways that are appropriate and useful.

Only when we ourselves have failed in some way are we able truly to sympathize with other people in their failures.

Only when we ourselves experience humiliation can we understand the feelings of others when they are humiliated.

Only when we realize our own desperate need to be forgiven by someone we've hurt are we able to forgive someone who hurts us.

Only when we lose our own innocence do we gain the wisdom to know that there are no good guys and bad guys, but only people who do some good things and some bad things, and some things that are very mixed in their results. Every moment we can consciously embrace our most frightening vulnerability in search of the power within us that will enable us to cope no matter what.

MSU ORIENTATION PARTICIPANTS - To acquaint new students with the academic process, the campus and the Starkville community, Mississippi State University is hosting a series of three-day orientation sessions during June. While on campus, freshmen and transfer students pre-register for fall classes, meet informally with faculty members and administrators, as well as other incoming students, and learn about the varied academic, social and personal opportunities available to them. Among those attending a recent session were Gulf Coast freshmen Gwen Favre of Bay St. Louis, second from left, Lauri Wood of Pass Christian and Robin Childers of Gautier. Assisting with their pre-registration was admissions counselor William Stephens. (MSU photo)

SEMINAR PARTICIPANTS-Among 35 Mississippi high school students who recently attended the 11th Annual Seminar in Horticulture at Mississippi State University, from left, Scott Humphrey and Betsy Murray of Gulfport, Teresa Holland of Bay St. Louis and Courtney Egan of Pearlman. Shown in the University Florist, the students had just completed making floral arrangements for a banquet which would conclude the seminar. In addition to attending the florist shop, the students visited the greenhouses, seed testing and entomology laboratories, and other university facilities. They attended special classes in plant identification and culture, landscaping, and seed analysis, among others taught by faculty members. Directed by the Mississippi State University Department of Horticulture, the seminar was sponsored by The Garden Clubs of Mississippi Inc. Local garden clubs made it possible for individual students to attend the seminar. (Photo courtesy MSU)

Parenting class begins July 1

An eight-week parenting class will begin at Gulf Coast Mental Health Center July 1. Taught by John McNally, mental health associate, the classes will meet each Tuesday evening from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Center at 4514 Old Pass Road in Gulfport. STEP (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting) helps parents create an effective parent-child relationship that can grow in an atmosphere of love, understanding and cooperative, according to McNally. The goal of the program is to teach parents to raise responsible children who can grow into responsible adults. For more information call John McNally at 863-1132.

Corps tells permit action

By RICH ADAMS
The Mobile District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, issued a total of 49 regular permits for work in navigable waters during April and May.

A permit was issued to Albert White on April 29 to place 40 cubic yards of fill adjacent to the Bay of St. Louis in conjunction with the construction of an 80-foot long and 3.5-foot high creosoted timber bulkhead in Bay St. Louis.

A permit was issued to Lonnie E. Williams on April 28 to construct a bulkhead and dock and perform dredging and backfill work on the Jourdan River near Kiln.

The Corps issued a general permit to James R. Bankston on April 9 to construct a bulkhead and perform maintenance dredging and fill on Bayou Cowan.

A general permit was also issued to Louise Painter on April 16 to perform maintenance dredging and fill and construct a pier on Marone Bayou.

Another permit was issued to Adam C. Gambel on April 1 to construct a pier and dock on the Jourdan River.

In May the Corps issued a letter permit to Western Geophysical Company allowing that company to perform seismic exploration of the St. Joe Pass and Heron Bay in Hancock County.

The Corps cancelled or withdrew a permit previously issued to Richard Prestenback to construct a boat ramp, bulkhead, and pier on Belle Canal off the East Pearl River in Hancock County.

A permit was also cancelled or withdrawn from the International Paper Company to dredge and fill Mulatto Bayou in Hancock County.

CAP seniors, cadets tour NSTL facilities

Cadets and seniors of the Gulfport campsite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, recently visited the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

The initial part of the tour retraced the early part of the space program, using models to depict spacecraft. Included in the tour was viewing of present aircraft and proposed planes of the future.

Included in the aircraft exhibition is the XV15 plane, which can hover as a helicopter in addition to performing as a jet plane.

Another remarkable plane is the HL10, used in the television series 'Six-Million Dollar Man.'

The plane crashed in the first episode of the show, and although the series was only fictitious, the crash itself is real. NASA Pilot Bruce Peterson crashed in the craft.

The second part of the tour took the Patrol members around the NSTL facility, including the testing stand for the three-space shuttle engines.

Also seen were deep water access in which large barges enter the facility, and the NOAA data buoys which contain scientific instruments which are used to study the ocean and atmosphere from deep water.

Drug-alcohol workshop set at USM

The university of Southern Mississippi is hosting the Deep South School of Alcohol and Drug Studies. July 6-11 at USM-Gulf Park in Long Beach.

The workshop, directed by experts from across the Southeastern U.S., will include 12 sessions dealing with treatment, education and identification.

Registration will take place at 1 p.m. July 6 in the Continuing Education Headquarters and classes will meet each day from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. in Hardy Hall.

For additional information contact Deep South School of Alcohol and Drug Studies, P.O. Box 4188, Shreveport, La. 71104.

BLOOD PRESSURE

High blood pressure is one of the major contributors to heart disease and stroke in the United States. It cannot usually be cured, but it can be controlled. To learn how, ask your doctor or call the county health department.

Goal-setting aids money management

By JANE HONEYCUTT
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

EDITOR'S NOTE: In these times of rising inflation, many Mississippi families are finding it increasingly difficult to stretch family income. This second story of a seven-part series on Family Money Management offers important goal setting advice for families seeking to keep expenses under control.

Setting goals can help people manage money better. "People can use their money more wisely if they set goals for its use," explained Bonita Bridges, a Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service area consumer management specialist.

Mrs. Bridges operates Extension's Money Management Center in Jackson where central Mississippi residents can receive free help with financial problems.

"Goals should represent a family's desire, values and attitudes," she said. "Some goals will be short-term, others long-term. Short term goals might include reducing a debt load, saving for a vacation, setting aside money for birthday gifts, establishing credit or maintaining a good credit rating."

Learning to live on what they make is an excellent goal for people in these difficult financial times. People can cut expenses by reducing the telephone bill, planting a vegetable garden, carpooling, turning the thermostat down in winter and up in summer and even by bathing in less hot water. All of these actions save money and represent short-term savings.

Long-term goals might include planning for retirement, saving for children's college expenses or setting aside money for home repairs. Mrs. Bridges said people should be aware that their homes will need more maintenance as they age.

Failure to set goal is major problem among Mrs. Bridges' clients and others who have trouble managing money. She tells of one client who earned $3,400 a month but had no savings account. With her guidance, he set a goal of saving money to use as the down payment on a house.

Within six months, he reached that goal.

She tells, too, of a young woman who wanted to replace her kitchen floor, but couldn't save enough money for the job. A study of her spending habits showed she spent $1.20 a day on snack items at coffee breaks (two soft drinks at 35 cents each and two packages of crackers or cookies at 25 cents each.)

By saving her coffee break money for a new floor, she was able to replace the floor within four months.

These two individuals, with widely varying incomes and disparate goals, are good examples of what can be accomplished by setting goals and working toward them—no matter how ambitious or insignificant the goals may be.

"Goals give people a plan or a direction for the actual use of their money," Mrs. Bridges said. "Without goals, people spend without regard for their future. They fail to face reality."

NEW PHONE CENTER - South Central Bell recently opened a new Customer Service Center at 108 St. Francis Street in Bay St. Louis, according to Franklin Kyle Jr., district manager for South Central Bell. The new service allows customers the convenience of picking up their new telephone sets, dropping off old sets when moving, exchanging sets in need of repair or with worn cords, or other damaged components. "In most cases, use of the Customer Service Center will result in the customer being able to correct a problem by picking up their new phone themselves at the Customer Service Center, they will eliminate the need for an installer visit to their residence and thereby save money. Hours of operation for the Bay St. Louis Customer Service Center are noon to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday. "We encourage customers to take advantage of the Customer Service Center where we can expedite almost every service request," Kyle said. (South Central Bell photo)

James Copeland Gang reigned terror over Hancock, Pearl River Counties

Probably the most notorious and the worst of all the robber gangs ever to operate in south Mississippi was the Copeland gang.

Back in the old days before there were banks in which people could deposit their money they had to keep their money themselves, in their own homes or hidden in nearby locations.

Even after banks were in most localities many people were afraid of them as they did not then have the deposit guarantees we now have. Since I have lived in Poycune an old man a few miles out sold his place.

He moved out one morning while the people he had sold to were moving in. A member of the family moving to this old place said the old gentleman took a shovel, went into the smokehouse and in the presence of the new owners and dug up his money.

While most of us do not realize it, banks are comparatively new in the lives of the people.

Because people did keep their money in their homes, robber gangs often went to peoples homes and robbed them if they were reported to have money. James Copeland joined one of these gangs as a young man.

After Copeland was tried and convicted for the murder of James A. Harvey and while waiting in the jail at old Augusta, Miss. for the day of his execution, he dictated a confession of all his crimes to Dr. J.R.S. Pitts, then sheriff of Perry County.

In his confession Copeland told of many robberies and murders in which he took part as a member of the gang. He first started out stealing his neighbor's cattle and hogs. When he first got into trouble, he took part with others in the burning of a courthouse over in Alabama to destroy all evidence against him and his gang.

From then on, according to his confession, he occupied his time in theft, murder and the burning of homes that he had helped to rob. When things got too hot for him and his gang in one area they would move to another and keep up their lawless activities. He confessed to robberies, and murders in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas and even went as far as Ohio.

Members of this gang often hid out in south Mississippi, around Gainesville, Pearlinton, Honey Island and along Catatoula Creek. One member of the gang pretending to be a preacher as a cover up for his criminal activities stayed in Gainesville for a whole year at one time and preached regularly while there.

In the course of their operations three members of this gang, including Copeland, had come into possession of a large amount of money, most of which was deposited in New Orleans.

In order to get their money into their own possession the head of the gang went to New Orleans and bought five barrels of whiskey. He got all the money in gold and placed it in long slim canvas bags made for that purpose and which he would pass through the bung hole of a barrel.

He passed all the money into one of the barrels.

He then put the bung in real tight and nailed the tin over it to hold it in place. He shipped the barrels by boat while taking passage on this same boat himself.

After reaching its destination the barrel with the money in it was hauled to a hide-out of the gang and opened up. They also had bank notes and other negotiable paper which they exchanged for gold in Mobile.

All this money was first hidden over near Mobile while the gang continued their criminal activities. The members of the gang then scattered out to avoid detection, one of them spending the year 1844 in Pearlinton.

About a year later through a pre-arranged plan the gang met again in Mobile. Here they found out that certain persons had gotten on to their activities, and were talking too much about it.

Copeland told of one man who had been talking, saying, "He met up with my brother and myself. Our two rifles made clear fire and we left him in a situation where he told no more tales."

They heard of another man who was threatening to get help and drive them out of the country. Copeland said, "We waylaid him and fed him with the contents of two double barrel shotguns and put him in a nearby swamp."

He told of squeezing the breath out of another and leaving him for the buzzards to eat, and he told of many other murders.

When things got too hot for them, around Mobile the robbers decided to move their money over into the area east of where Poycune now stands on Catatoula Creek and they themselves scatter around this section. Many references are made to Gainesville, Pearlinton, Honey Island, Hancock County and Catatoula Creek in the Copeland confession.

The head of the gang came over into Hancock County and built a home on Catatoula Creek. To move the money over into this area they loaded three kegs with the money on a wagon which they covered with household goods. Each one of the three robbers got a map showing the location of the hidden money on the banks of Catatoula Creek.

Two of the robbers were later killed by Harvey and Copeland lost his map in the battle in which Harvey was killed. So far as anyone knows this money has never been found.

Copeland's confession telling of the burial of this money set off a hunt for this gold that began over 100 years ago, and which, as you can see for yourself, is still going on as there are many places along Catatoula where people have dug for this gold.

All along during these years the members of this notorious gang were stealing slaves and horses as well as robbing people of their money. A strong young slave would bring as much as $1000 and a good horse up to $300.

One of the Copeland gang sold his farm up in Perry County to James A. Harvey, telling him that he had a patent for the land and owned it. Harvey paid him all the purchase price except $40 and gave him a note for that.

Harvey then found the man did not own the land. This man sold Harvey's note to two other members of the gang. On a trip up that way these men went to Harvey to collect the note. Harvey at first refused to pay the note, telling the men that he had bought land the seller did not own. They demanded the money anyway and threatened Harvey unless he paid it.

They had the advantage so Harvey told them that he did not have the money but that he would get out and try to borrow it and settle with them if they would come by the next morning, when they came back Harvey shouted to them that he would not pay because he did not own it and because he did not have that much money.

They threatened him again and started toward the house. Harvey put his hat on the end of his gun barrel and held it just above the hedge where they could see it. They shot his hat off the gun barrel. Harvey then shot and killed one of them and mortally wounded the other.

When the rest of the gang heard what had happened, the parents of one of the dead men offered Copeland $1000 if he would kill Harvey. Copeland, with three other men, went to Harvey's place to kill him but he had moved to another place nearby.

The gangsters found a good crop growing on the place and they saw signs that someone was coming to the place regularly, probably daily.

They decided to stay in the vacant house and wait for Harvey to come. They kept a watchman out so they would not be surprised. Harvey did not come that first day, the gangsters got hungry and ate peaches, figs and other fruit they found on the place. Late in the day they got so hungry they built a fire in the fireplace and roasted some roasting ear corn for food.

Some of them warned against building the fire as the smoke might warn Harvey but their hunger got the best of them. As it turned out the smoke from the fire did betray them.

The watchman saw no sign of anyone during the night but the next morning he shouted that he saw a whole army of Black Creek men coming that way. Harvey and his men shouted to them to come on out and give up.

Copeland said in his confession, "I ran to the outside and dogged behind a big fig tree. I looked back and saw Pool, one of my men, standing in the door with his gun at ready just as Harvey came around the house."

Pool fired and struck Harvey in the left side. Harvey immediately squared himself and shot the contents of his whole into Pool's side and then fell to the gallery. Pool stepped into the yard and another man shot him in the breast and he fell dead.

"The rest of us ran as fast as we could. As the shot whistled around my head I ran so fast I never touched the ground but flew over it."

No one would bury Pool so the buzzards ate him where he fell. The other gangsters got away. Harvey was mortally wounded and died nine days later.

The grand jury indicted Copeland and those with him. In the meantime he had been arrested and sentenced to serve time in the Alabama penitentiary. When his time was up Mississippi deputy sheriffs were waiting for him.

They carried him to old Augusta where he was tried and sentenced to hang. The records show that he was tried in March 1857. He appealed. The supreme court ordered him hung on October 30 of that year.

Copeland and his record were known by everybody. He had been dreaded and feared over this whole area for many years. A tremendous crowd attended his hanging. Among those attending was the seven-year-old daughter of James A. Harvey who was sent from where Poplarville now stands.

This girl grew up and married Joseph A. Smith from that same area. Among the children of this couple were

Area brownies receive awards

Bay Catholic Elementary Brownie Troop No. 453 recently held its Court of Awards Ceremony at the St. Rose Campus.

A family Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Bernard Keller, pastor of St. Rose Church. Altar Boys were Mike Weems and Jean Larroux.

Christine Ellis, Gina Parrillo and Molly Weems were the Cross and candle bearers. Hayden Larroux, Lauri Gagnon, Vicki LaFontaine and Kerry Merrigan gave the readings. Libby Rutledge and Chelsey Waite were the gifts bearers; and Renee Schaefer gave the welcome address.

The Bridging To Junior Scouts Ceremony was held during the Mass. Troop Leader Lauri LaFontaine and Asst. Troop Leader Dayle Gagnon conducted the ceremony. Each girl was pinned with the Girl Scout Pin and received the Junior Scout Sash with the Bridge to Juniors and Brownie Wings.

After Mass, all guests and family members attended the buffet supper in the school's cafeteria, where the awards ceremony was held.

Mrs. LaFontaine and Mrs. Gagnon presented the awards and introduced special guests, Mrs. Ethel Schott, neighborhood chairman, and Mrs.

Hilda Bourg, neighborhood troop organizer.

Awards received were: Cookie Patch, sold 50 or more boxes of cookies; Christine Ellis; Vicki LaFontaine; Lauri Gagnon; Hayden Larroux; Kerry Merrigan; Gina Parrillo; Libby Rutledge; Renee Schaefer; Chelsey Waite; Crystal Weaver; and Molly Weems.

Remote telephone answering device available at Bell

The 'AutoMatic TelePhone' - a telephone-answering set that will enable you to "never miss another phone call" - is now available from South Central Bell, the company recently announced.

Designed for business and residence customers alike, the AutoMatic TelePhone is "more than a telephone answering device," according to Franklin Kyle, Jr., District Manager for the telephone company.

Kyle said the instrument combines a telephone with a device that automatically records messages and gives callers a personalized, taped response - 24 hours a day.

"The AutoMatic TelePhone records up to 20 minutes of incoming messages," said Kyle, "and that 20 minutes may be used for many short messages or for one 20-minute message. Since there's no time limit for each message, callers cannot be 'hung-up' on in mid-sentence."

He said the AutoMatic TelePhone comes in rotary and push-button dialing models, and is also offered in an adjunct model for attachment to an existing telephone set.

"The AutoMatic TelePhone also comes in remote and non-remote models," according to Kyle. "The remote model enables someone - using a special pocket coder - to play back their recorded messages from any other telephone in the world. The coder also permits its user to erase old messages from a remotely located telephone."

He said the AutoMatic TelePhone is convenient for someone who is either unable or too busy to take calls personally, or whose office or business is temporarily closed.

Available in black, and trimmed with a brushed aluminum-faceplate and a walnut-finished base, the new set is modular - that is, it can easily be plugged into an existing modular jack in a home.

"If the AutoMatic TelePhone is to be used as a residence extension telephone, a customer can pick one up at a PhoneCenter Store, go home, plug it in and start using it immediately," Kyle said.

Establish food budget carefully, area consumer specialist advises

MONEY TALK

BY NORINE BARNES
Before setting up a food budget, the consumer should consider the family's special food needs and its consumption patterns - does the family include infants, teenagers, or people with special dietary problems? What are the family's favorite foods? Are many meals eaten away from home and if so, for what reason?

Once these questions have been answered and an appropriate part of the family's income set aside for food, there are a number of strategies that will help the consumer cope with rising prices.

First of all, it is important to sharpen shopping skills. The consumer should learn to compare prices and ingredients. Try the cheaper generic and house brands as substitutes for nationally advertised products.

Also consider altering the family's diet patterns by including more beans, grains, chicken, and other low-cost protein sources and less beef, pork, and processed meats. Substitute nutritious natural foods for processed snacks and reduce the number of meals away from home.

Those who buy regularly in quick-stop or neighborhood stores are paying for convenience, service, and credit as well as for food and don't benefit from price competition among larger stores and supermarkets.

Alternatives to retail stores should also be considered: home gardens, food co-ops and u-pick farms where the consumer trades time and labor for lower food prices. Roadside stands and farmer's markets sometimes offer considerable savings on high-quality products.

Freezing and canning foods can mean significant savings, but the consumer should determine the total costs for produce, equipment, and energy before including home preservation in a money-saving plan.

Pearl board approves projects

Several summer building projects were approved for Pearl River Junior college here Tuesday at the regularly scheduled June meeting of the PRC Board of Trustees.

Martin Smith, the board attorney, also gave a report on the Ayers vs. Finch case and the PRC board hired a new business manager.

Nearly $16,000 in vocational-technical repairs were approved for the Poplarville, Hancock, Lamar and Forrest County centers. The board also agreed to spend $20,000 to replace the unit system in the Science building and $5000 to paint the interior and construct a partial partition in the PRC Student Center.

Repairs will also be made to Marion Hall, the three-story, hexagon-shaped female resident hall on campus. Shower stalls will be repaired as well as furniture will be purchased for nine of the modules at a cost of $7000.

Attorney Smith gave a report on the Ayers vs. Finch case and on the recommendations of Attorney Smith, a motion was made and seconded to reject the minority hiring projection 75-25 and authorized the board attorney to enter an agreement for minority hiring projection of 50-50.

Ronnie Holmes of Poplarville and an accountant in the Bogalusa, La. area was employed as business manager of the college. Employment begins July 1. Holmes will replace Jerry Mitchell who resigned earlier this year.

President Marvin R. White gave the board a report of the state laws affecting junior colleges passed by the Mississippi Legislature during the 1980 session and the state funds the college would receive during the 1980-81 sessions.

Dr. James Sones, vocational-technical coordinator, informed the board of the 100 percent funds that have been made available to the college for the purchase of equipment for the vo-tech department.

Frank Fortenberry, a Marion County board member, and the executive chairman of the Dr. Garvin H. Johnston Avenue of Magnolias gave a report of the success of the PRC graduation exercise and the formal dedication service of the Johnston Avenue of Magnolias.

The Pearl River Board employed Shirley Strough as English instructor; Elaine Hill as history instructor and Peggy McComber as math instructor for the PRC evening classes being taught in Picaune.

In final board actions the claim docket of expenditures for the month of May was approved in the amount of $90,207.

Forestry museum funds increasing

During the past few months more than twelve hundred Mississippians have contributed in excess of $217,000 to the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum Foundation fund raising campaign, according to Commissioner Jim Buck Ross, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

"More donations are coming in steadily," Ross said, "but more are needed to keep the project moving toward completion."

The first phase of the museum, a forty-thousand square foot exhibition building, will be completed by early fall.

"An appropriation of 1.5 million dollars by the legislature for construction of the exhibition building will be exhausted soon and another 1.5 million dollars is being sought by the Museum Foundation to fund the exhibits as well as other phases of this worthwhile endeavor," Ross explained. Designed to be educational as well as interesting, the museum will serve as a living laboratory of Mississippi's rural past and a guide for future planning.

"Students and other groups will find it invaluable as they look backward into the rural history of the state," Ross said.

"We are asking that the other fine citizens of Mississippi join in becoming a part of the rural life museum being built now on Lakeland Drive in Jackson, near Interstate 55, on a 39-acre site, which was generously donated by the city," he added.

NASA community service includes space lectures

Dr. Jerry Brown enthalls young audience with factual tales of outer space

A unique program for groups of all ages is available this summer at NSTL through the NASA Public Affairs Office.

Dr. Jerry Brown, acting chief educational programs officer, has already addressed several groups in the surrounding communities, as well as visitors to the installation. He is also working with NSTL's Summer Research Apprenticeship Program.

A typical lecture begins with a brief description of NASA's past accomplishments, followed by a discussion of the agency's role in aeronautics, examining advanced technology transport aircraft. Models of several types of aircraft supplement this portion of the lecture.

The presentation includes an examination of the Space Shuttle, its missions and recovery methods.

Brown then takes a look at the astronauts, in space.

To illustrate these topics, Brown utilizes a complete astronaut suit, a life support system which will be used by shuttle astronauts, samples of food taken of space missions and moon rocks.

The program is then opened to questions from the audience.

While the lectures may be essentially the same, the responses of various audiences are always unpredictable.

Areas of interest vary with age. Youngsters are always excited about the astronaut segment of the program because, according to Brown, the children can envision themselves as an astronaut.

While younger audiences dream, older listeners are basically concerned with the earthbound benefits of NASA.

Overeaters attend Coast retreat

The 4th Annual Gulf Coast Overeater Anonymous Retreat was held at Gulf Park College recently. The retreat was well attended by members from Florida, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

The main guest speaker came from Orlando, Florida. She is the treasurer of World Service office in California and does many conventions in Florida.

She shared her experiences in working the twelve steps of Overeaters Anonymous. O.A. is a fellowship to help the compulsive Overeater to arrest his compulsion for life. Members commit themselves to doing their share knowing there is always someone and God to help you in time of stress.

The guest speaker explained the twelve steps in this way.

First, we must be honest with ourselves and admit that our lives are unmanageable when we add refined sugars and/or starches to our meal plans; Second, through O.A. we receive hope from God and other members to be able to arrest our compulsion forever.

Third, we must have faith in the program and God.

Fourth, we take a personal inventory of ourselves and through this courage we find freedom.

The fifth step teaches us to forgive ourselves by admitting our faults.

"Sixth we become willing to let go of our defects of character in order to find our identity.

Seventh, pride verses humility and we begin to conform our will to God's Will.

Through brotherly love for others we make amends for our actions not our feelings in the eighth, ninth and tenth step.

Through this discipline we become more aware of the needs of others and promptly admit our faults.

In the eleventh step we become more aware of God's help and ask Him for the courage and strength to work our program one day at a time.

Through the last step we try to carry this message to other compulsive overeaters by giving love and service to those we can reach out and touch.

The retreat continued throughout the weekend with members sharing their experiences, strength and hope. On Saturday there was an O.A. buffet, a sing-a-long, and a Busting Out Style Show. Literature and books were available at the retreat.

Bay-Waveland O.A. meets every Wednesday at 7:30 in the Johnson Hall behind Christ Episcopal Church. Anyone needing help is invited to attend. The organization has no dues, and is self-supporting through contributions. The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop eating compulsively.

Cocklebur toxicity to swine confirmed

Farmers should not release swine in freshly plowed fields infested with cocklebur seedlings because they are poisonous. According to U.S. Department of Agriculture, University of Georgia, and National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences researchers, young cocklebur weeds in their first two weeks of growth present the most threat to young swine.

Following an outbreak of swine poisoning in south Georgia, researchers Richard J. Cole, Barry P. Stuart, John A. Lansden, and Richard H. Cox used spectroscopic and chemical analysis to confirm that neither the suspected hydroquinone nor the mechanical action of the burrs was responsible for the debilitating effects that produce toxicity and death in swine.

They isolated and identified carboxyatractylide as the highly toxic agent responsible for the poisonous properties of cocklebur, a noxious weed found in most of the world.

Cole and Lansden are with the USDA's Science and Education Administration's National Peanut Laboratory in Dawson, Ga. Stuart is with the University of Georgia Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory in Tifton, and Cox is with the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in Research Triangle Park, N.C.

NORDA computer taught to read handprinting

Computers can perform all kinds of magic these days, including reading printing composed by machine, but they have been stymied in reading handwriting or even handprinting. A pioneering effort in that direction is underway at the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA), where its Pattern Analysis Laboratory has taught a computer to read handprinted numbers.

Sponsored by the Defense Mapping Agency (DMA), the NORDA program is developing a computer handprinted symbol recognition system that can read the hundreds of tiny numbers printed by hydrographers on ocean survey charts to indicate depth soundings.

These soundings from all over the world are vital raw data used in oceanographic research and in the preparation of navigation charts. Their use could be tremendously accelerated if a computer could recognize these numbers, which could then be readily converted to digital data, stored and printed out when needed.

These depth soundings have been collected for centuries, starting when they were made by a leadline and a sextant. It is estimated that there now exists from five to ten million miles of these soundings.

Even today when electronic navigation, precision depth sounders, recorders, and the latest computer technology are used to conduct ocean surveys, handwritten charts must still be prepared and sent to DMA to be converted into printed charts (maps) for navigation.

Computers can now read machine printing since the symbols are uniform, consistent in shape and all upright. In sharp contrast, the NORDA program, the only one like it in the country, is faced with reading the free-flowing, sometimes ill-formed printing that appears at all angles on survey charts.

In addition, the numbers are frequently intermixed with non-numerical symbols, including bathymetric contour lines which run through them, and which are surrounded by ink smudges and other "trash."

This means that the computer at times must identify a number against a highly cluttered background. Another complicating factor is that the computer must make virtually no mistakes. It must identify the numbers written in various patterns and styles with an error rate close to zero percent. This high degree of reliability is needed to establish complete confidence in the system.

Any significant error rate would make it necessary for cartographers to pore over each sheet to search out and manually correct the error. That would be a laborious and expensive procedure which would nullify the advantages of the machine reading system.

The computer, which uses a television camera as its "eyes," is taught to recognize a particular number by feeding it a series of creatively developed instructions that uniquely describe the number.

For example, it has learned that if a number is a "3," it must have two left openings (among other characteristics). A "7" must have a level top, a left opening and a long tail. A proper "8" must have two enclosed areas. A "4" is more difficult to distinguish because of the many different ways people write that number.

The computer "pupil" has already made significant progress. It has achieved the desired error-free rate for numbers that are upright and clean; that is, they are fairly well formed and separated.

While this accounts for only a small portion of the depth soundings collected over the years, it turns out that this capability can be applied to most modern charts, which have been prepared much more carefully with numbers printed more precisely than in the past.

The next step for the NORDA Pattern Analysis Laboratory, which is expected to be accomplished this summer, is to teach the computer to reject or ignore those numbers it cannot positively identify. By learning to leave a blank (which can be filled in manually later) rather than making a mistake, the computer can handle more numbers that are poorly formed while maintaining its low error rate.

The laboratory plans to produce a complete workable system within a year. At a later date, improvements to the system to allow the computer to read the older, less legible charts with badly oriented numbers will be built on these initial techniques.

Once the current DMA program is complete, the NORDA group plans to attempt the much more difficult task of teaching the computer to read the handprinted letters of geographic place names placed on charts.

Success in this area would be a major advance in machine intelligence and computer reading technology. In the same time frame, NORDA expects to explore using the Pattern Analysis Laboratory for reading bathymetric and acoustic signal patterns.

The pattern analysis research program is under the technical leadership of Dr.

Robert M. Brown and Mr. Larry K. Gronmeyer and directed by Mr. Clifford J.

MOTOCROSS RACERS—Tony (Snuffy) Stamper, left, and Eddie (Spaghetti Eddie) Andry display some of the first and second place trophies they have won while racing on a two-man motocross team sponsored by Taconi's Kawasaki Sales in Bay St. Louis. The duo began racing some seven months ago, and have captured more than 35 trophies, most of which are on display at the motorcycle sales shop on US-90. Butch Stamper, Tony's father, coaches and transports the two youngsters to the races in Mississippi and Louisiana. Last Sunday the young Stamper won three more trophies and Andry captured two awards. School shot program to include all pupils

The immunization program for Mississippi's school children will include students in all grades this year.

For the first time, all students will come under the program, according to Dr. Charles Holladay, state superintendent of education.

Holladay said every student will be required to have the blue Certificate of Compliance before he or she will be allowed to attend class.

Holladay said this is especially important for children entering the first grade, seniors and for those who did not attend schools in the state last year, since they may not have the required immunizations.

State Health Officer Dr. Alton Cobb said immunization may be obtained from a private physician or the county Health department.

Area students cited at GCJC

Sixteen vocational students have been named to the President's List and 35 to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Gulf Coast Junior College's Jefferson Davis Campus.

Those on the President's List, announced by Dr. J.J.

Hayden Jr., include:

Bay St. Louis—Alfred L. Holt.

Making the Dean's List, furnished by Glen Cadle, include:

Pass Christian—Florine Hawthorne.

Bay woman attends

USM reading confab

The University of Southern Mississippi's 40th Annual Reading Conference brought 50 participants to the campus to learn new trends and developments in the field of reading education.

Bay St. Louis residents attending the conference included Joanne R. Hultstrand.

The workshop was taught by Drs. Paul Borthwick and George McNinch of the Reading Center.

Martin cited by McNeese

Theresa Marie Martin of Waveland is among 1,090 McNeese State University students listed on the Lake Charles, La. university's Honor Roll.

The honor roll for the second semester of the school year, January to May, 1980, lists all students who earned a 'B' average (3.0) while carrying the 12 or more semester hours.

VA questions and answers

Q—I plan to take a correspondence course. The cost of the course far exceeds the benefits I am entitled to under the GI Bill. Can I obtain a Veterans Administration education loan to pay the extra costs of the course?

A—No. Veterans pursuing a program of correspondence are not eligible for education loans to defray costs of these courses.

Q—What is the minimum disability rating a veteran must have in order to be eligible to receive Veterans Administration vocational rehabilitation assistance?

A—A veteran must have a service connected disability of at least 10 percent for basic eligibility.

Q—Is a veteran receiving service connected disability compensation benefits at the 20 percent rate entitled to additional benefits for a spouse and children?

A—No. Increased benefits are only authorized if the veteran is rated 30 percent or more disabled.

TIMBER THEFTS RISE

Despite the nation's housing slump, timber thefts continue to rise in the nation.

The Pacific Northwest today is beset with a timber crime wave that has reached a 'big time' status, while 60 Federal Bureau of Investigation agents have been assigned to combat the problem nationwide.

Mississippi, fortunately, has been spared from most of the new elements now in the illicit business, according to Mississippi forestry and law enforcement agencies. However, the new breed of bad guys victimizing federally owned forest lands in Mississippi are reportedly using the latest harvesting equipment to strike quickly and be on their way.

A spokesman for the National Forests of Mississippi acknowledged to this writer that thefts of standing timber on the federal preserves in this state amount to more than local folks poaching a few trees for firewood. While this minor form of timber thieving does go on in the state, the federal lands occasionally are hit by operators who drive in, cut a load, and drive out. They take pains not to attract attention to their presence, or if they do, they try to appear as legitimate cutters.

The Jackson office of the FBI reported that the problem here was not acute enough for special assignment of agents.

But on the West Coast helicopters have been used recently to work in conjunction with self-loading trucks, according to the current issue of the American Forests magazine. The publication reports that ancient cedar trees are being felled on federal lands, hemlock and Douglas-fir logs are being stolen from off decks, and throngs of illegal firewood cutters have set up for illicit business on national forest lands.

Around the country, the Great Lakes region continues to have a problem with the theft of black walnut trees, highly valued on the international market for furniture veneers. In the East firewood thefts are the biggest problem as about half of the homes of New England today burn wood as an alternate energy source.

Glen Jones, executive secretary of the Mississippi Forestry Association, reports that there is no particular rise in reports to timber thefts among the commercial forest owners who are members of the state association. However, Jones added that occasionally property owners complain of trees felled by operators who stray beyond property boundaries.

Oddly enough, probably the most troublesome tree heists in Mississippi in recent years come from alongside the state's highway system where many thousands of Magnolias have been planted as a beautification program of the Keep Mississippi Beautiful Committee. The Avenue of Magnolias project is several years old now, but annually is plagued by passers-by who, unwittingly or not, dig up the special plantings along the entrances of the state.

The magnolias are provided for highway right-of-way plantings by garden clubs of Mississippi and by interested individuals as memorials to honor Mississippians.

Because of a considerable number of thefts of these trees, warning signs have recently been posted by the Mississippi Highway Department and both local and state law enforcement officials are stepping up vigilance in the areas.

The Natchez Trace Parkway rangers' office in Jackson reports that anywhere from 10 to 25 citations are issued annually to local citizens for cutting Christmas trees from the parkway between Tupelo and Natchez. Fines assure that these trees are neither Christmas gifts nor bargains, and whether or not a culprit appears before a federal magistrate depends on an evaluation by the ranger of aesthetic damages to the parkway's natural appearance.

Mississippi landowners victimized by timber poachers may well take a cue from law enforcement officers in Florida who have scored well in court by matching suspected stolen logs with stumps to prove their cases before the judge.

PEARL SEEN AS THREAT

Kent Saxon belied his 79 years as he sat in his ivy-trimmed, Scott county breezeway and spoke his equally strong-toned convictions about rampaging rivers and local affairs.

For 20 years of his professional life he served as a troubleshooter for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, New Orleans District. Upon retirement he had accumulated a scrapbook of articles, commendations and pictures which mirror the extraordinary role of a man in a struggle against the destructive forces of nature. He also had documented his continuing struggles with local and political affairs with no small measure of personal involvement.

By Saxon's own admission he is looked upon as 'a river fighting legend and possible an 'every day' cuss' if you happen to fall in with some of his political enemies. But, from whatever stance, he is regarded as a man of action and conviction. This article deals with some of both.

As a man of action he holds a citation from the Corps for his role as a civilian troubleshooter who directed methods that spared New Orleans from a catastrophic flood in 1949. He is the designer of a time and expense saving method of neutralizing 'boils' behind levees—a technique since adopted by the Army Engineers. Saxon's method consists of installing a four-foot tall metal ring around the seepage boil which wells up the water over it to create neutralizing back pressure.

He designed and built new asphalt apron systems of revetments along the Mississippi River, and once was loaned out to the West Coast to build asphalt jetties into the Pacific Ocean. So much for credentials.

Recently Saxon telephoned this writer to express his concern over what he considers to be a potential disaster along the Pearl River. He sees the annual embrace of the Pearl with the bosom of Jackson as both too intimate and enthusiastic each spring, and observes that it will only get worse.

The water expert says that a stream, unlike a horse, cannot be harness broken. Bridling with dams and levees instead brings out the worst in a stream. Rivers are best dealt with, he says, by keeping them free-flowing—even helped along by dredging and snagging. Rainy season flooding tends to healthily "blow them out" and sweep the channels clean—enabling them to do their job better.

This natural process was hindered by construction of a dam across the Pearl, Saxon said, and as a result today the river no longer can clean itself out. The reservoir, Saxon added, is doomed already because it has rapidly become a silting basin that is filling up with sediment from upstream.

Sediment, already has replaced much of the reservoir's water storage capacity and the shallows today increase the dangers of recreational use of the lake.

Saxon's greatest concern is for the safety of the people and properties in Jackson. The silting of the reservoir and the levees around Jackson both mean growing pressures on the Pearl to explode into the Capital City each spring.

He firmly believes that the Easter flood of 1979 will not be rare, but an annual expectation.

The solution to the problem as he sees it is to desist from further dams on the stream and commence dredging and snagging operations to restore the stream's ability to maintain itself as a flowing stream in all seasons.

Kent Saxon hopes responsible officials will heed the advice of an old river fighter before it is too late. And having had his way, the old fighter returned to tending his yard and garden—and just a few local matters that, like the river, hadn't been given an adequate chance to clean themselves up.
